New company ownership

Per July 31, 2013 Johannes Wild handed over sawi Mess- und Regeltechnik AG, Winterthur, Switzerland to CEO André Schächli, and retired from the board of directors. The new owner continues this company under the same name and in the same legal form, but with new headquarters in Gotzenwil.

Mr Schächli also takes over the German subsidiary sawi Mess- und Regeltechnik GmbH, at the same time transferring the company address from Jestetten to Lottstetten.

André Schächli, electrical engineer aged 52, has been CEO sawi since 2009. He will continue to uphold the success factors of this company – innovative technology, first class quality, uncompromising punctuality and fair pricing.

Johannes Wild founded sawi Mess- und Regeltechnik AG in 1965. This high-tech company, celebrating its golden jubilee in 2015, specializes in temperature sensors for industrial applications and systematically follows a market niche policy. Main customers are the plastics industry in Switzerland, Germany and neighbouring countries. The company currently has 25 employees including two commercial apprentices and two 2 apprentice draftsmen.

We sincerely thank our customers for their loyalty and partnership, and shall continue serving them in the company tradition of excellence and punctuality through professional know-how and teamwork.

Many thanks also to our suppliers for their dependability, flexibility and cooperative commitment. We look forward to continuing this mutually fruitful relationship.
